DAUGHERTY'S CASE IS NOW WITH JURORS

He and Miller Await Verdict in Fraud Case Hearing

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The twelve jurors who will decide the fate of H. M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, reassembled in federal court today to continue the jury room deliberations suspended last night.

The trial which has lasted five weeks reached the jury stage last night. The jury continued discussion until midnight and then went under guard to a hotel. Although the orders were to reassemble at 10:30 this morning, the jurors were back at their deliberations at 9:50.

Daugherty and Miller respectively attorney general and alien property custodian during the presidency of W. G. Harding, are charged with conspiring to defraud the government of their best services in 1921 when $1,000,000 assets of the American Metal Company, impounded during the war under trading with the enemy act were released through their offices.

Defendants Await Word

Judge Mack arrived in the federal building at 10:25 by which time both the defendants had arrived and were strolling about the corridors.

The trial, which has lasted five weeks, reached its final phase last night when Judge Mack charged the jury. The twelve men retired to deliberate but as midnight approached without a decision, they were sent under guard to a hotel for the night to resume deliberations this morning.

Daugherty, formerly attorney general and Miller, formerly alien property custodian are accused of sharing in a $441,000 bribe to approve a $7,000,000 alien claim on the government in 1921.

The maximum penalty for this offense is two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine or both.

Drove Boat Too Fast in Streets of City; Arrested

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Setting a new record for all time, the Illinois river, at 25 feet, 11 inches at 10 o'clock this morning, has flooded all of Beardstown, there being only 28 homes not surrounded by water this morning. The flood record in 1922 was 25.1.

Mayor Harris and other city officials thought that outside help should not be asked, that "the Salvation Army was doing splendid work and Beardstown can take care of its own."

One arrest for violation of street ordinances has been made. Gust, mail carrier, is charged with driving his motor boat through the residential district at a speed which threw waves large enough to break several windows.

GOVERNMENT MAY TAKE A HAND IN INDIANA PROBE

Dept. of Justice Agent Plans to Interview ex-Klan Dragon

Michigan City, Ind., Oct. 9.—Warden W. H. Daly of the Indiana State Prison here, refused today to honor the order of the superior court at Indianapolis to send D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon and now a life prisoner, back to that city.

An indication that the federal government has taken an interest in the charges that Stephenson has a tale to tell of alleged corruption in Indiana politics was given today when Jack Moroney, Department of Justice agent, said he planned to interview Stephenson in regard to the charges.

Moroney said he had interviewed Thomas H. Adams, published of the Vincennes Commercial.

Stephenson is in the state prison here serving a life sentence for murder. He was formerly grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan.

Moroney of the Indianapolis office of the justice department came here last night and held a conference with Warden Daly. It was understood, to arrange for an interview with Stephenson.

Moroney returned to the prison to see Stephenson.

Moroney was uncommunicative but it was assumed here that approval had been given at Washington for justice agents to inquire into the charges attributed to Stephenson with relation to the federal elections and corrupt practices laws.

The warden and other prison officials declined to talk to newspaper representatives about the case.

HOG CHOLERA IN LEE COUNTY IS WORSE THAN IT EVER HAS BEEN AND SERUM SUPPLY EXHAUSTED

Local Veterinarians are Without Means to Fight Disease.

The epidemic of hog cholera in Lee county today was reported to be the worst it has been this year and to be breaking out in new localities. Serum used in the vaccination of hogs is hardly obtainable, veterinarians declared, and the outlook was said to be most serious.

After having almost disappeared from localities which were among the first to show an appearance of the disease, cholera was reported to be breaking out in valuable herds east of Amboy. Veterinarians declared today that the condition at present was as bad in Lee county and throughout the corn belt as at any time in history.

The action taken recently by the federal department in removing the 21-day test of serum, and releasing it for use at the end of eleven days, was hoped to give some relief locally. Many veterinarians in the county are without any of the cholera serum, their supplies having been completely exhausted by the demand of hog owners for vaccination. The price of the serum has advanced noticeably and there was said to be only a very limited amount on hand in Dixon today. Hopes were held for the receipt of a considerable quantity of serum from the federal department over the week-end, however.

CAMPAIGN FOR CIVIC MUSIC ASSN. TO END

Last Chance to Join this Evening: Drive Closes at 10 P. M.

With excellent progress reported at noon today, the membership committee of the Dixon Civic Music Assn. announced this afternoon that prospects for better and more concerts during the coming season were excellent, since the membership drive will not close until 10 o'clock this evening. It is expected that many lovers of the best in music who have not been canvassed by the committee will call at the Association's headquarters before 10 o'clock tonight and join the fine organization, which is doing so much to better the musical life of the city.

The number and class of the concerts to be presented by the association during the winter depends on the number of members secured before the campaign closes this evening; therefore all who wish to participate in an exceptional musical season should be sure to enroll with the club this evening. To encourage a taste for good music among the younger people of the city, especially students in the schools, the association has made a decided reduction in the membership rate for Juniors, and this reduction should result in parents of many children enrolling or them. Either adult or junior membership admits holder to all concerts of the association—and membership is necessary to hear these concerts, inasmuch as no tickets are sold at the door for any attraction.

The train stopped, placed Mr. Sikkema in the baggage car, and took him to Sterling, where he was conveyed by ambulance to the Sterling hospital. Upon examination it was learned that the base of his skull was fractured, his collar bone broken and two ribs were fractured. In addition he sustained numerous cuts and bruises on his body. He was unconscious when picked up at the scene of the accident and remained in that condition until he died. The attending physician gave no hope of his recovery after the extent of his injuries was learned.

Mr. Sikkema is survived by his wife and two children, Donald, aged about 14 years, and Marjorie, aged about 7 years. He also leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sikkema of Fulton, two and two sisters and one brother, Mrs. John Vanderploeg of Fulton, Mrs. Jake Wiersma of Holland, Mich., and Garrett Sikkema of Fulton.

Funeral services will be held at Fulton Monday afternoon.

Do You Remember Way Back When—

L. W. Mitchell's pony "Trinket" received first prize at the Columbian Exposition, Chicago. Jason Ayres played in the band when Lincoln spoke here.

Prof. Dille caught the boys carrying hay from the campus for the cow in the college chapel.

The Cherry Sisters gave one of their celebrated concerts in the old Opera House, and Etta Isabel Cherry to a bean pole, which was not far out of the way.

It was told that when Artemus Ward spoke here, he was entertained by the wonderful host, Governor Charters, and everything was "lit up" for the occasion.

Judge Farrand, Cap and Bill Dycart, Bill Rink, J. W. McAlpine and Jayson Ayres were the crack players in six hand pedro in the old Dixon Club.

First Street in the business district was soft muddy sand.

J. L. Hartwell was teacher in the old college at Bluff Park.

Big Dan McKinney the liveryman said he sat up with Father Dixon the night he died and that he was the kindest soul he ever knew.

When most everybody in town had a motor boat on the river and Dixon boasted of a crack bicycle club.

Come on, fellows, let's start something: chip in to the Evening Telegraph.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO HAVE "OPEN HOUSE" AT THEIR FINE NEW CLUB HOME NEXT TUESDAY

Members and friends of Dixon Council, Knights of Columbus, expect next Tuesday, Oct. 12—Landing Day—to mark an outstanding epoch in the history of the local organization; for on that day the Council will open its handsome and commodious "club home" in the former A. K. Trusdell property, Third street and Madison avenue.

The building has been entirely remodelled, refurnished and refurnished—a description of which will be published in The Telegraph Monday evening—and the members have real reason or personal and collective pride in their accomplishments.

That the public, regardless of religious affiliation, may see what fine quarters the Knights now have, an "open house reception" has been planned for Tuesday afternoon and evening, from 1 o'clock to 9 and everyone in the city and community is invited to visit the home during those hours. Grand Knight Gerald Jones has sent invitations to all civic organizations of Dixon to visit the home at that time, and doubtless the citizens will be heartily and gladly accepted.

Today Anniversary of Birth of Father Dixon, Oct. 9, 1874

Today marks the 42nd anniversary of Father John Dixon, the founder of the city of Dixon, beloved of the Indians and early settlers in this community. Father Dixon was born in the village of Rye, Westchester county, New York, coming west in 1820 in company with Mrs. Dixon and their children and his brother-in-law, Charles S. Boyd. They left New York in a covered wagon, drawn by a single team, making their first home on Fancy Creek, nine miles from the present site of Springfield, at the close of a journey which required over seventy days. In 1830 he bought Ogee's ferry here, and on April 11, that year moved here. He died July 6, 1876.

FORMER OFFICIAL OF WHITESIDE CO. KILLED IN WRECK

Joseph Sikkema Victim of Accident on Railroad Crossing

Joseph D. Sikkema, aged 37, well known Fulton business man former deputy county clerk of Whiteside county, died in the Sterling hospital shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday night, following injuries received at 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when his auto was struck by passenger train No. 55 on Pearson's crossing of the North Western railroad near the Alger farm west of Union Grove.

Mr. Sikkema was driving a Ford coupe and was enroute to the George Housenga farm in Utatic, but was not taking the right road. The Pearson crossing is a difficult one for a motorist to see an approaching train when driving west, and it is evident that the fast train caught him unaware, as the engine struck the rear part of his machine, which was wrecked.

The train stopped, placed Mr. Sikkema in the baggage car, and took him to Sterling, where he was conveyed by ambulance to the Sterling hospital. Upon examination it was learned that the base of his skull was fractured, his collar bone broken and two ribs were fractured. In addition he sustained numerous cuts and bruises on his body. He was unconscious when picked up at the scene of the accident and remained in that condition until he died. The attending physician gave no hope of his recovery after the extent of his injuries was learned.

Mr. Sikkema is survived by his wife and two children, Donald, aged about 14 years, and Marjorie, aged about 7 years. He also leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sikkema of Fulton, two and two sisters and one brother, Mrs. John Vanderploeg of Fulton, Mrs. Jake Wiersma of Holland, Mich., and Garrett Sikkema of Fulton.

Funeral services will be held at Fulton Monday afternoon.

CLAIMS ARGUMENT OVER ALCOHOL WAS CAUSE OF SLAYING

Harold Riggs of Clinton Described Murder of Insurance Man

Clinton, Ia.,—"We had a dispute. He tore my shirt. I shot him twice." Thus succinctly does Harold Riggs, describe the death of Edward J. Stewart, whose mangled body was found Wednesday morning in the quarry at the foot of "Lone Grave" bluff.

"After he fell I robbed his body," Riggs says. "I don't know how much money he had on him."

He buried some of the money near "I buried some of the money near the place. Some more I hid at Stony Point across the river. The rest I took along."

Authorities today were checking up these points in Riggs' confession. Riggs told the authorities during the course of his confession, that he and Stewart went to the murder scene to get some cans of alcohol, which he, Riggs, had "planted" there.

The confession cleared up the mystery surrounding the place where Stewart left his automobile just before the murder Wednesday morning. The car was not left on Fourth or Fifth street, as had been variously reported. It was parked by Stewart near the old lime-kiln in the unused quarry, across the tracks west of the old mill "Daisy" and the "upper mill" formerly operated by Gardiner, Batchelder & Welles. It was here that Riggs picked up the car after the murder, and drove down town with it, later abandoning the machine in the former Heend junkyard on north Second street.

Rode in Car With Stewart

Riggs says he was walking north on south Seventh street, Lyons, about 9 o'clock last Wednesday morning when Stewart came out of his home, driving his Chevrolet coach. Riggs got in the car with Stewart and they started north. Riggs says he was well acquainted with Stewart. They had once been neighbors and they had had business dealings. Riggs said his family had taken out insurance policies with Stewart and had paid $1.10 a week on these.

Told of Planted Alcohol

On their trip to the north part of Lyons, Riggs said he told Stewart he had four cans of alcohol hidden in the bluff and added that lately he had been dealing a little in alcohol.

Stewart drove around by the lock factory, then north along the railroad tracks, to the old quarry. He left the keys in the car, and the two men got out and walked to "Lone Grave" bluff.

They started to ascend the precipitous path which leads to the top of the bluff, but did not go to the top.

Fight on Cliff Path

About halfway up the incline, Riggs said in his confession they got into a dispute about the alcohol. Stewart, he says, seized him and tore his shirt. "Then I shot him," said Riggs. Stewart started to call for help and the men struggling locked together.

"He kept hollering and I shot him again," said Riggs.

Riggs gun was a 22 caliber automatic. Something was wrong with the mechanism, and he had to make an adjustment in it before he could shoot a second time.

While the men were clinched, they rolled together down the path, Riggs said. He said nothing about throwing Stewart over the fifteen foot rock near the bottom. The way he described it, both men rolled down.

Mrs. Goldsmith claimed that Riggs came out of the brush, saw her, and then went back a second time. Riggs says both shots were fired with only a short interval between.

The struggle occurred at the spot where the police later found scattered the letters and insurance papers of the dead man.

OLD MASTERS
To be or not to be: that is the question. Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, Or to take arms against a sea of troubles, And by opposing end them? To die; to sleep; No more, and by a sleep to say we end The heartache and the thousand natural shocks That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation Devoutly to be wished. To die, to sleep; To sleep, perchance to dream: aye, there's the rub; For in that sleep of death what dreams may come When we have shuffled off this mortal coil, Must give us pause. There's the respect That makes calamity of so long life. For who would bear the whips and scorns of time, The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely, The pangs of despised love, the law's delay, The insolence of office, and the spurns That patient merit of the unworthy takes, When he himself might his quietus make With a bare bodkin? Who would fardels bear, To grunt and sweat under a weary life, But that the dread of something after death, The undiscovered country from whose bourne No traveler returns, puzzles the will, And makes us rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of? Thus conscience does make cowards of us all; And thus the native hue of resolution Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought, And enterprises of great pitch and moment, With this regard their currents turn awry, And lost the name of action. Soft you now! The fair Ophelia. Nymph, in thy orisons Be all my sins remembered.

Claims Women are Not Satisfied Way Laws are Enforced

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Women are not satisfied with the present enforcement of law, especially the law based on the 18th amendment, Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Massachusetts said today in a speech to the Illinois Women's Committee for Law Enforcement.

"There are many reasons for lack of enforcement," she said, "among them a determined and powerful minority organized to bring back again the gainful trade in alcoholic liquors. These organizations which have grown up with the sympathy of liquor interests in this country and abroad are waging war either to nullify or repeal the Amendment. Since repeal is impossible except through the regular course by which the law came into being, nullification seems to be the real objective. The United States does not stand for nullification of its constitution.

"There are, among other reasons, the lack of necessary legislation in many states. As Dan Pound, of Harvard Law School, has stated, 'We are using horseback legislation in an electrical age.'

"We also face the situation in many of our courts. The survey, conducted by the 'Know Your Courts Campaign' in Massachusetts, brought out very illuminating facts regarding the easy way for a criminal to escape prison. Illinois does not need to go to Massachusetts for information on this subject.

"The key and solution of this whole situation lies in electing men who will enforce the law. This has been done in the majority of states. There are, however, twelve states which stand out as law-breaking states. This is due to political influence, to the fact that they are border states and to the unwillingness in certain states to provide a state enforcement law. It is also due to enormous propaganda by many associations opposed to prohibition. The grave danger that confronts this nation lies in the fact that we have a vast alien population centered in cities like Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Boston. If they are allowed to break one law with which they are not in sympathy they will easily reason that they may break other laws, which is being done. Lawlessness today includes not merely the breaking of the laws based on the 18th Amendment but banditry, burglary and murder.

"The Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement has provided through its Ammunition or the Campaign, a series of telling leaflets and posters, which give the facts, with the authorities. The recent posters, So This is Canada, Her own Statement, carries the following facts:

SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT CONTROL?

It has not done away with the saloon.

It has not stopped Bootlegging or "Blind Pigs."

It has not decreased liquor drinking—Authority Quebec Liquor Report, 1924-1925.

"Drunkness among women has increased 53 percent—Montreal Star.

"It does not improve moral conditions"—Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney General of Dominion.

"British Columbia reports 'Seven Thousand Bootleggers in Vancouver'—Liquor Detective Force, Vancouver Sun.

In 1925 every brewer in Manitoba was fined for violation of law; January 1926 six out of seven were again convicted—Premier Brakin, Liquor Controller Vaughn, and Chief Inspector MacLean.

"A plaster campaign will be carried on through the coming weeks and a campaign of education is beginning which will extend to 1928 when the nation will face a contest in which women will have a large part. It is in preparation for this campaign of education and enlightenment that the women are meeting in great organizations through the country to prepare themselves to use the ballot effectively against the forces of unrighteousness. Women are the national law enforcers in the home. Men are and will be the law givers. They are failing in law enforcement as they fail in the home. Father is absent or absent-minded. If Mother fails to enforce the law the situation is serious. Mother will not fail when her eyes are open to the need of training and enforcement in state and nation as in the home."

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Because women are cats, six years of suffrage have permitted them to effect no real changes in law or politics. This is the frank conclusion of a male journalist who starts his treatise thus—"One day, after being unmercifully 'razed' in the Senate, a certain high official chatted gayly with his critic as the two, arm in arm, descended the steps of the capitol. Not many blocks distant, there was a gathering of club women. Here was a prominent figure was observed to abruptly quit the luncheon table at the approach of an erstwhile critic. That trait constitutes woman's greatest handicap. To map, censure is impersonal to woman it is an affront."

I happen to be a woman, but I believe the gentleman is absolutely right.

And here's another slam for the United sex from another male carper. He says in no mincing terms that American women are positively rotten cooks. This ukase wells from the soul of William Allen White. He says in part—"The weak spot in American art is the American kitchen."

"We spend more money for food per capita than any other people, but the folk-cooking of America is, on the whole, horrible."

Then the male carper grows specific and offers this constructive criticism. "The American woman fries and stews where other civilized women broil and roast; she makes ungodly messes that revolt the palate."

There's not a word of truth in that statement that the American housewife fries to more excess than women of other countries. I say that loudly and boldly after a three months' diet in eight nations across the seas, where constant platters of fried meats and vegetables made me long mightily for these same "ungodly messes" of the American cook.

Much whining about cooks these days! Someone else breaks into print with this: "This need now is for a new sort of cook—a cook adapted to the apartment, a cook for the professional woman or the wife who has activities outside the home."

Queen Marie Not to be Filmed in U. S.

Paris, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Queen Marie has given notice that she must not be filmed in the United States, even in her daily comings and goings. But she will see the inside workings of the cinema world at Hollywood as guest of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

When told of an offer of $25,000 to pose as Queen in Tolstoy's "Resurrection," she smiled and said "I might perhaps have secured a better engagement than that."

"The idea is quite funny, but unfortunately, it is untrue. It would not amuse me at all to play the queen in a film."

While in the United States the Queen will eschew politics, but will try to make clear the situation of her homeland to the Americans.

"Of course, first of all," said the Queen, "I am going to the White House in response to the very kind invitation of the President."

The Queen will land in New York, Oct. 18, dine at the White House Oct. 19, visit Annapolis and Baltimore, Oct. 20 and Philadelphia. Exposition Oct. 21. She will return to New York before leaving for the Pacific coast.

A PROUD NAME THAT IS DIFFICULT TO KEEP—BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

We like it rather well if someone calls us a thoroughbred. We do not know exactly what is implied in the compliment, but we take it for granted that there is not much left to be desired.

A horse is a thoroughbred if he is bred from a long line of ancestors trained for a certain thing. A draft horse or a heavy coach horse may be as thoroughly bred as the finest racing horse. He is trained to do a certain thing, and that is the thing you may be absolutely sure he will do—a 100 per cent—and he never breaks over.

A human thoroughbred is the person who knows how to play the game and may be depended upon not to break over. He is true blue. It is a big order to live up to. How many of us are entitled to wear the blue ribbon?

A thoroughbred is a loyal friend. If he goes back on a friendship once, he breaks his record and he is not a thoroughbred. A trifling jealousy, a little matter of personal inconvenience, and he forgets friendship for the matter of a day—he must hand in his ribbon. His title has gone.

The thoroughbred does not use his

W. F. M. S. of M. E. Church in Session

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church held its first meeting of the conference year with Mrs. J. W. Watts and Mrs. Clea Bunnell Thursday afternoon, the pleasant day resulting in a large attendance. The new president, Miss Callie Morgan, took charge of the meeting, which opened with the "personality" hymn of the society, "Be Strong," and which was followed by the installation of the new officers, Mrs. Rowe being the installing officer.

Three past presidents of the society had charge of the devotionals—Mrs. Harned, Mrs. Fordham and Mrs. E. Wingert. Mrs. Hobbs presented the arch which was well filled with the gains the society made during the year.

Yearly reports of the Recording Secretary, Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer were read and were most gratifying to the members. Mrs. Bills gave in an interesting manner a review of the text book for 1926-27, "Moslem Women and Children." Mrs. C. C. Rorick sang beautifully, "The King's Highway" and at the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a happy social hour followed.

LAW LIMITS EXPENSES.

Law limiting campaign expenses of candidates for United States senator and representative in congress passed in 1925 is effective in the November election for the first time. All of the commotion about expenditures in primary elections of last spring was without any allegation that any federal laws had been violated, the supreme court having held invalid the law by which congress attempted to regulate primary elections. It is possible, the court held, for the congress to pass laws restricting expenditures incident to a general election. Therefore congress reformed the statute to conform to the court decision.

The law provides for publicity of campaign contributions and expenditures in the form of public reports by candidates and political committees, but before and after the election. No limitation is placed upon the expenditures that may be made by national political committees. Perhaps the national committees are above suspicion. Anyhow there ought to be loophole somewhere through which money can be put into a district where a hard partisan fight is on. No thoughtful and farseeing legislator would close all avenues of support.

Candidates, or their committees for them, may make expenditures to an amount equal to the amount obtained by multiplying 3 cents by the total number of votes cast at the last generation election for all candidates for the office which the candidate seeks, but in no event exceeding $25,000 if a candidate for senator, or $5000, if a candidate for representative.

Provision is made, however, that money expended to meet fees charged against candidates by the states and their "necessary personal, traveling or subsistence expenses or for stationery, postal, writing or printing (other than for use on billboards or in newspapers), for distributing letters, circulars or posters, or for telegraph or telephone service," is not to be included in determining the legal maximum of campaign expenses.

In other words the candidate may expend money without limit for printing advertising matter and sending it through the mails, but he is limited in the extent he may utilize newspaper advertising, the cheapest method available for reaching all of the voters with a public appeal.

Although national committees are not limited in their expenditures, they are required to file reports with the clerk of the house of representatives at stated times. Financial statements are to contain names of all persons who have contributed more than $100 and the total of contributions. Similar statements are to be filed by persons who make expenditures of more than $50 other than through political committees, for the purpose of influencing the election of candidates in two or more states.

The last specification is understood to apply to the Anti-Saloon league and the Association Opposed to Prohibition and like organizations interested in legislation.

The candidate for membership of either the senate or the house is required to give the name and address and occupation of every person to whom he has made a promise "prior to the closing of the polls on the day of election relating to the appointment or recommendation for appointment to any public or private position or employment for the purpose of securing support for his candidacy."

Statement of any such promise would be a confession of a violation of the law, and it may be suspected that no such confessions will be made.

Candidates will find it more profitable to make their pledges to vote for certain legislation, increasing salaries and pensions and the like, whereby whole blocks of votes can be obtained without violation of law.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Tinymites tramped through the dolls and woods and hills, mid shouts and yells. They surely were a cheerful crowd just filled with fun and play. "Let's run," said Scouty Tinymite. "Then we can reach our home by night. Don't wait until tomorrow with what we can do today." And so, before the sun had set, the Tinymites were there, you bet, and standing right before them was a bird house in a tree. "How's that?" yelled Scouty Tinymite. "It's surely ought to be all right. It's just as fine a home as any home could ever be." "Hurrah!" The cheer was long and loud and came from all those in the crowd, "cause they were mighty tickled with a place to sleep at night. And then, said one, "let's hurry now, and fix this birdhouse up somehow, for if we're going to live in it, we want it looking right."

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Faith, said Mr. Lane, appearing on noiseless, stocking feet at the doorway of his wife's room, where Faith was trying to make the invalid comfortable for the night. "George Pruitt and his sister are on the front porch. They want to see you."

"My land! Can't you ask 'em in?" Mrs. Lane's fretful, feeble voice demanded from the depths of her pillows. "And you lookin' a sight! I've told you a thousand times not to set around in your stocking feet. Does seem to me like you could manage to look like somebody! What's she like? Stuck up little priss, I'll be bound."

"Seems like a right nice girl," Mr. Lane answered mildly. "Not what you'd call pretty exactly, but stylish and lively. Would you like 'em to step in and see you, Martha? They'd be right glad to, I know. Nothin' stuck up about them young people."

"Give me my hood-wad cap, Faith—that crocheted one of yellow and pink. And my yellow silk dressin' sack. And my carnation talcum. It's in the top right-hand bureau drawer."

"Do you really want to see them, Mother?" Faith hesitated uneasily. She had met Selma Pruitt, had admired the lively girl's wit, her ability to mimic those whom her capricious sense of humor chose as fair prey, but had hoped her talents would never be turned upon herself or her family.

"Reckon you're ashamed of your mother," Mrs. Lane accused her. "Your fine friends are too good to be brought into your own home."

Without another word, Faith found and brought to her mother the articles she had demanded, helped her adjust, over her straggling, thin gray hair, the absurd crocheted "hood-wad cap," and fastened the lace-trimmed yellow silk "dressing sack" over the vast bosom.

"Hello, Faith, you splendid young goddess!" Selma Pruitt's laughing, lyric-soprano voice called out. "You always make me feel like an underdone half portion of squab. I've brought your Romeo with me—simply pining away he was, poor darling. What in the world have you done to our George?"

"Awfully glad to see you, Selma," Faith offered her hand with shy dignity. "How are you, George? You aren't looking emaciated. I'm sorry Cherry isn't here. She went to a dance at the Warrens' house."

"At the Warrens'?" Selma demanded, with staccato surprise. "That's odd. Frances Warren and Joe Stevens came by our house ten minutes ago to ask us to go to the movies with them."

"Then—" Faith drew a sharp breath, but smiled quickly. "I must have been mistaken as to where the dance was to be. Bill Warren called for her."

"But Bill—" Selma began, looking toward George, who stifled her with an imperative frown and jerk of the head, unseen by Faith.

"My mother would like to meet you, Selma," Faith led the way into the living room. "She's ill, you know. She doesn't see many people, and she's rather lonely. Would you mind—just a few minutes?"

"Love it," Selma Pruitt answered promptly. "Come along, George, and quit making faces at me. You look like a gargoyle. He's so afraid you and him, Faith. I teased the poor darling into confessing that he'd proposed to you and you'd turned him down. Please reconsider—for our sakes. He's been a terrible person to live with since he developed this unrequited passion."

"Oh, shut up! I see myself telling you anything again!" George Pruitt growled at his sister.

"I'll strangle her if she does," George Pruitt said savagely, under his breath. "You haven't changed your mind, have you, dear? I—I'm pretty miserable, Faith."

Faith backed against the wall, weakly, for temptation had swooped down upon her overwhelmingly. If she were engaged to George, Bob Hathaway's undeclared, scarcely realized love for her, would she still-born. And if she told him frankly that Cherry was flinging herself into an old man's arms, because he, Bob, did not care for her, would not his infatuation flame into life again?

Wasn't it the only way to save Cherry? And maybe—somehow—she could learn to love George. He was such a dear, would he be good to her.

"Don't ask me—now," she whispered, giving him both her hands in an unmistakable gesture of promise. (To Be Continued)

Her Own Way.

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

IN THE BALANCE

Before I opened my eyes again, hours afterward, I caught the smell of disinfectants and anaesthetics and I wondered if it were possible that I had been taken to a hospital. I still had a feeling of something pressing down upon my chest which I had had before I lost consciousness.

Cautionously I tried to move my hands and found that one of them was immovable. The other I managed with great effort to bring toward my head.

Then I got the courage to open my eyes and saw that instead of the rooms of the Beaux Arts, which in some way I subconsciously expected to find, I was looking into the kind eyes of a white-clad nurse and about me were the four bare grey walls of a hospital room.

It was then that I realized the heavy thing lying across my chest was my left arm, which had been splintered and was evidently in a cast.

"Is it broken?" I whispered.

"Yes, my dear, it is broken in two places. The doctors say, however, that it will be all right. How do you feel this morning?"

"Well, I'm not prepared to say that I'm ready to do a Charleston," I answered with a faint grin.

The word "Charleston" focused my mind on my legs. I tried to move them and could not suppress a cry of pain.

"Careful, careful, dear," admonished the nurse, "your left leg is also fractured, but it is a comparatively simple one and the doctors are not going to put it in a cast."

At last I began to remember—what had happened to the others? Were any of them hurt? John! He must have gotten more of that chandelier upon him than I. The last thing I was conscious of was that he was bending over me, protecting me with his body.

"Did any of the others get hurt?" I asked.

Before the nurse answered I saw her face grow grave.

"Mr. Meredith is very badly hurt, Miss Dean. The doctors hold out very little hope of his recovery."

I did not know that I had drawn myself up very quickly to a sitting posture until the agony of my leg turned me faint. "I must go to him," I said.

"There, there, my dear, lie down. You shall go to him in a short time. Just as soon as Dr. Phillips comes you can go to Mr. Meredith. They are depending upon the sight of you to give him courage to live."

"Let me go now. I must not wait a minute. Don't you know that he saved my life perhaps at the cost of his own?"

The Eton crop has started a new style in English feminine photography. It has been discovered that the natural curve of the body, not usually obtainable with long hair, appears at its best with a close shaven head and bare arms, shoulders and back. The poise of the head adorned with an Eton crop, shows off the nape of the neck, which in turn shows off the shoulders and arms and continues an harmonious line to the waist.

The meeting was called to order by the new president, Miss Clara Lahman. Twenty-six members responded to the roll call, "Co-operation." Four guests were also present.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Motion made and carried to pay the two bills, one presented by Mrs. Maude Hussey, financial secretary for $13.75 for printing programs, the other bill presented by Mrs. Minnie Brown for $6 for plowing the park, getting it ready for the planting of the shrubbery and grass seed. # UNIONIZATION OF AUTO INDUSTRY IS PLAN OF A. F. OF L.

To Start Campaign in De- troit; Address Stirs Meeting

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The annual convention of the American Federation of Labor turned again to routine business in the concluding sessions of its first stormy week.

Tomorrow eight leaders in the convention including William Green, president of the Federation, and Frank Morrison, secretary, will speak from various pulpits of the city.

Discussion of the committee on the executive council's report opened a wide field for the half day Saturday session, the report having touched upon more than 150 specific problems of policy and organization routine.

A statement from President Green denying the remarks of Sherwood Eddy, secretary of the International Y. M. C. A. at Thursday's meeting, reflected the attitude of the labor body or its officers was in the convention record today. Mr. Green charged his guest with having violated courtesy by addressing himself to a subject already before the convention as official business.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 8.—(AP)—A campaign to unionize all branches of the automobile industry has been authorized by the American Federation of Labor.

The organization last night unanimously adopted a report which included a call upon the executive council to launch the move for organization of the motor field. The resolution, presented to the convention by the metal trades department, provided that a conference is to be called to work out details.

The plan provides for the establishment of an organization with headquarters in a city in the automobile manufacturing zone under direction of officials of the union whose members embrace the automobile crafts.

Detroit as the scene of the new undertaking was urged by sponsors of the resolution.

Dislike Eddy's Talk.

The convention faced a new dilemma today in a tide of sentiment favoring action disavowing the address of a convention guest publicly charged by some delegates with having violated the courtesy of the floor.

Members of the executive council of the federation deliberated on a possible course of action regarding the remarks of Sherwood Eddy, introduced at yesterday's session as secretary for Asia of the International Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Eddy was cordially greeted but soon after adjournment officers expressed astonishment at the nature and tone of his remarks and last night blocs gathered informally to outline a program looking to emphatic denial that the address in any manner reflected the sentiments of the convention.

Challenged Police.

Mr. Eddy approached convention officers for the privilege of the floor a few hours after President Green had been informed an invitation to him to address the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday had been withdrawn.

In his address, Mr. Eddy challenged the policies of the federation on international labor relation and expressed disagreement with the attitude of the federation towards Russia.

Officers were disinclined to embarrass a guest of their convention but were outspoken in their declarations that they could not permit Mr. Eddy's remarks to go unchallenged.

Mr. Eddy recommended consideration of the problems of Russia as elements of far-reaching significance in international affairs. "For good or evil, from the point of view of shaping history, Russia is perhaps the most significant country in the world today together with our own."

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—An informal, polite "Thank you" has almost started a revolution among telephone girls and subscribers in Illinois.

Subscribers were surprised, this week, after placing their calls, to hear, not the usual repetition of the number but, instead the two words, "Thank You".

Arguments followed, however, as the subscribers realized that they had only one chance to give their numbers and the surprise has, in many places turned to concern.

"Notwithstanding the possibility of mistakes," Jay G. Mitchell, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Telephone Association, "this is a fine example of a minor change of great value. An enormous number of observations were made and when analyzed they showed conclusively that the substitution of the words, "Thank You" for the repetition of the called number, increased the efficiency of the service."

"The step is not basically one of courtesy. Efficiency is the end and the means to the end might as well combine with courtesy."

"Watch the subscriber after a few calls through the new system. He realizes that he has one chance to get his party and he doesn't mouth the numbers. Slowly and with careful enunciation he calls his number and half the wrong numbers are immediately eliminated."

TWO WELL KNOWN BIBLE TEACHERS TO ATTEND MEET

W. R. Newell and Pastor Wm. McCarrell Coming to Conference

An unusual opportunity will be afforded the people of Dixon next week to hear two well known Bible teachers. The Illinois Christian Fundamentals Association, who will conduct the third Annual Bible Conference at Bethel United Evangelical church, have been fortunate to secure William R. Newell and Pastor William McCarrell as teachers for this conference.

Both of these men are known for their teaching ability and loyalty to the Bible. No doubt many, not only from Dixon, but also from the surrounding community will use this opportunity to hear these teachers.

Rev. William McCarrell, who will be the teacher the first three days of the conference, is the pastor of the Cicero, Ill. Congregational church and is well known in Dixon. At the present time he is also the teacher of one of the largest Bible classes in the midwest, at Grand Rapids, Mich., and teaches a large class at Racine, Wis.

During the past summer he was the teacher at Bible Conferences at Gull Lake, Mich., and Cedar Lake, Ind. His teaching and preaching is forceful, spiritual and evangelistic.

The teacher for the last three days will be William R. Newell. Mr. Newell is an internationally known Bible teacher, having taught the Bible in Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Toronto, Shanghai, China, and other places. Many time 2000 people would gather at a time to hear this Peerless Bible teacher expound the Scriptures. For some time he was in semi-retirement because of ill health, but has now recovered and is again teaching in his old time power. It is with a great deal of satisfaction that the Ill. Christian Fundamentals Association has secured him for this conference. He is also the author of a fine volume on the Epistle to the Romans. The Bible will be a new book to you after you have heard his expositions.

Sessions will be held each evening at 7:30 from Oct. 12th to 17th.

Immediately following this conference the annual convention of the Illinois Christian Fundamentals Association will be held in Grand Rapids, Mich. A strong program has been prepared with Mr. Newell, Pastor McCarrell, President J. O. Buswell of Wheaton College and others as speakers. The music will be a special feature. The dates are Oct. 15th to 21st.

This price is based on 3.5 per cent milk.

The new price is an increase of 65 cents per cwt. over the former price of $2.20.

Mattoon dairymen who formerly peddled milk about town, now find it more profitable to sell direct to the dealers. The latter are able to handle a larger volume hence can sell at a closer margin. The price to the consumer was not increased.

Accidentally Shot Self to Death, Hunting Rats

Danville—Ernest W. Meyer, 40, of Gilman was accidentally killed while shooting rats at his home. He stumbled and fell as he stooped to pick up a rodent he had shot. The gun dropped and a charge of shot blew off the back of his head.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Dairymen in the vicinity of Mattoon in Coles County, Illinois have adopted a sales plan modeled after that in force on the Peoria market according to the Illinois Agricultural Association.

At a recent meeting held at Mattoon, A. D. Lynch, director of dairy marketing for the I. A. A.

ILLINOIS-IOWA GAMES ALWAYS FURNISH THRILL

History Shows Stiffly Contested Battles Between Rivals

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 9.—Keen competition generally has characterized football games between Illinois and Iowa whose teams play the homecoming game in the Illinois stadium on Oct. 16. It will be the sixteenth meeting of the two universities but their gridiron history began 27 years ago.

In the first game, played at Rock Island in 1899, the Illini were overwhelmed 58 to 0 and it is of safe to mark that far back is the presence of Justa Lindgren, assistant coach at Illinois, and Carl Lundgren, baseball coach, who were on the ill-fated Illinois team. However, Lindgren as captain led an avenging team to Iowa City in 1901 where the Hawks were conquered by a score of 27 to 0. More revenge was obtained in 1902 when Iowa came to Illinois field for the last game of the season and was overwhelmed by a score of 50 to 0 by the Illini led by Jake Stahl in his last college game. George Bronson of Urbana was a bright star in this engagement.

In 1908 when the series was terminated until after the war, each team had won two games. In 1918, Iowa, with the two Devines and Big Slater had a good team but the Illini invaded Iowa City to win by a score of 19 to 0. This was the first game of the series in the regime of Coach Zuppke of Illinois. In 1919 the Hawkeyes brought another good team to Illinois field only to meet defeat 9 to 7. It was in this game that Coach Zuppke's outside kick play which he had warned the officials to watch for, was executed perfectly for a touchdown. In 1920 the Hawks again came to Illinois to lose by a score of 20 to 3. The Iowa teams of 1918, 1919 and 1920 were all strong, including as they did the two Devines, Slater and other stars and the reverses were bitter blows to them.

New Day for Iowa
But a new day dawned in 1921 when Iowa, which later achieved conference supremacy, defeated the Illini at Iowa City 14 to 2. In 1922 came a historic battle, Illinois, with one of the weakest teams that Zuppke had coached, had been defeated by Butler in a preliminary game as "Zup" scouted Iowa in its triumph over Yale at New Haven. It was the last homecoming game played on Illinois field. Iowa, later a champion, scratched out a victory, 8 to 7, over the fighting Illini.

In 1923 Red Grange's brilliant catching of passes and Britton's toe won for the Illini a score of 9 to 6 at Iowa City. In 1924 a new interest was added to the series, as Iowa engaged as coach Earl Luginbill, Illinois player and coach. The Hawks encountered the Illini in 1924 when they were at their top speed and were smothered, 26 to 0.

But Ingwersen obtained revenge last year at Iowa City when "Cowboy" Nick Kutsch, in the last few minutes of play, broke through the Illinois line and scored a touchdown that won for the Hawks, 12 to 10.

In all time, Illinois has won nine and lost six games to Iowa. Iowa won championships in 1899, 1921 and 1922. Illinois won championships in 1910, 1914, 1915, 1918, 1919 and 1923. Illinois has scored 281 points and Iowa 145.

Capacity Crowd to See Notre Dame Play Minn.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The football world focused its attention on Memorial Stadium at University of Minnesota as the Gopher and Notre Dame eleven prepared to clash in the leading gridiron classic of the country here today.

The first capacity crowd was expected to fill the new stadium and officials were ready to handle 53,000 fans.

Coach Knute Rockne made two shifts in his Notre Dame lineup, starting Meyer and Leppig guard positions, instead of the Smith boys who were slated to open the game in the line.

Dutch Arendsee, veteran backfield star of last year was Dr. Spears' selection to start the game as the 4th man in the Minnesota backfield.

Lenglen to Make Debut as Professional Tonight

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen and professional tennis make their debut tonight on indoor courts at Madison Square Garden. Tickets $1 to $5.

In single Mlle. Lenglen will meet Mary K. Browne, former national champion. In mixed doubles she will team with Vincent Richards, former Davis cup star against Miss Browne and Howard Kinzy.

Table Reading Lamps at Library an Improvement

The reading tables at the Dixon public library have been equipped with some very fine reading lamps, which add materially to the comfort of the patrons of the institution. Fixtures have been arranged on the tables, two to each table supporting two lamps each, which are covered with green shades. The improvement is one which is being greatly appreciated by the large number who make almost daily use of the reading tables.

BLEACHER FANS SOAKED TO THE SKIN

Showers that soaked the huge bleacher crowds to the skin meant nothing to the 38,000 rabid Cardinal fans in Sportsman's Park for the third game of the World Series. This photo shows the loyal bleacher fans using newspapers and umbrellas to protect themselves from the downpour that interrupted the game in the fourth inning.

PUNTS AND PASSES OF TODAY

Associated Press Collects Hottest News from College Football Teams

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of Coach Bob Zuppke's past theories, that big feet are an essential of backfield success, will receive a test this fall in the struggles of the University of Chicago Maroons. The little University of Illinois men, who are called "Red" Grange's size 11 E as ideal. With such excellent ground grippers it would be difficult for a tackler to knock the well equipped halfback off balance, cited Zuppke.

The Maroons average size 9 or a trifle smaller this year, and two of the backs, Reed and Dygart, had to have special shoes made to fit feet of size 5 1-2. Of the regular backfield, all but Stan Rouse could carry their feet and their pocketbooks in size 9's.

Hobart Neff, giant guard, is the possessor of Grange-like pedal extremities—number 11 E.

Northwestern University, which

Drake will journey from the middle west to play Navy, which last week repulsed a similar invasion by defeating Purdue.

Tiny Lewis, Northwestern's stellar fullback, who came back to the gridiron under quaint circumstances, will make his presence felt against Indiana in the Purple's first Big Ten Championship game the following week. Lewis, pledged not to play football this season after he had made up scholastic deficiencies during the summer, was relieved of the obligation by President Scott.

The University of Wisconsin football team insists upon privacy in its practice. Coach Little has requested the public to remain away from the Camp Randall stadium when secret practice is in order. The press will not be excluded when properly identified.

Three intersectional contests stand out in this week's football program, one in the middle west and two in the east. The University of Chicago, successful in a north-south battle last week when it defeated Florida 12-6, will entertain the University of Maryland at Stagg Field, Chicago.

Georgia will march against Yale, and netted that a new coach would have to be obtained. The official report of the incident follows:

"Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, famous Wisconsin basketball mentor, will remain at the Badger Institution contrary to rumors that he had handed a written resignation to Athletic Director George E. Little. The slight misunderstanding over basketball men reporting for football practice was quickly settled when Meanwell and Little first met, and the little shortpass wizard is still busily engaged tooting his whistle at the old Wisconsin Armory where he has held forth for years."

Reports from the various Big Ten practice fields generally were of no field dissatisfaction with the showing of the eleven, despite the potential strength revealed by the actual play of most of the schools.

From various quarters, however, came praise for potential individual stars.

Joe Kresky, sophomore fullback, was started at half for the University of Wisconsin, and gave an excellent account of himself. He carried the ball well, and was outstanding for his blocking and defensive play.

Forrest ("Frosty") Peters was acclaimed by Illinois after a most promising debut. He came to Illinois with a world's record of 17 field goals in a single game, and was hailed as a second Red Grange.

Minnesota promises to go into the important Notre Dame game with virtually its full strength, and with the outlook that Minnesota's conference chances will be judged by the outcome.

Chicago's Open Game to Get Another Test

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A second test for the open football into which A. A. Stagg ventured in Chicago's first engagement of the year was provided today in the Maroons game with the University of Maryland.

Stagg, who consistently declined to forsake straight football, staked his charges against Maryland in the open style of attack which had an auspicious beginning in the defeat of Florida.

Tingling Weather for Eastern Grid Battles

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Tingling football weather greeted eastern football teams today.

Leading in intersectional attractions and a real test for Yale was the Georgia invasion of the Yale Bowl. Harvard's green team had a strenuous session on tap with Holy Cross, Washington and Lee threatened the Princeton Tiger.

Dartmouth had a southern challenger in Virginia Poly.

The Army was host to Davis Elkins while the Navy had a doubleheader against the University of Richmond and Drake.

YEAR AGO TODAY

Chicago and Ohio State battled to a 3 to 2 tie on Stagg Field, the second year the two teams have been unable to reach a decision. Bob Curley dropped kicked three points for the Maroons and Jenkins did likewise for the Buckeyes. A year previous the score was also 3 and 3 at Columbus.

Michigan showed tremendous power in running over Indiana 63 to 0. The two Wolverine Benches—Friedmann and Osterbaan—starred in the role of throwing forward pass touchdowns.

Nick Kutsch, the Iowa star, stepped into the limelight when he ran wild and on St. Louis U., at Iowa City, the Hawks winning by the lopsided count of 41 to 0.

Illinois defeated Butler 18 to 13, and "Red" Grange strutted his stuff before the pop-eyed scouts from Pennsylvania, scoring two touchdowns.

Other teams participated in practice games with the following results: Northwestern 17, Carleton 0; Wisconsin 35; Franklin O.; Purdue 39; De Pauw 0; Minnesota 34; Grinnell 6.

Jumping Joe Almost Nipped

but was almost caught at first by a snap throw from O'Farrell, Cardinal catcher. This shot shows him just beating the throw to Jim Bottomley. Joe Dugan made the Yanks' first hit in the third game of the World Series, played at St. Louis. He led off with a single in the third inning.

Illinois Death Rate Increased Last Year

Springfield.—(AP)—The death rate in Illinois for 1925 showed a considerable increase over 1924 in figures announced by the U. S. Department of Commerce at Washington. The 1925 rates was 1,151 per 100,000 compared with 1,122 in 1924. A large part of the increase was due to the increase in the death rate from nephritis and diseases of the heart. The death rate from tuberculosis showed a slight decline. Automobile fatalities in 1925 totaled 1,268, compared with 1,065 the previous year.

Announcement of new models—all powered with 7-bearing crankshaft motors, the world's smoothest type—

Tracked by the Police

William B. Courtney

Copyright, 1926, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"TRACKED BY THE POLICE," starring Rin-Tin-Tin, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
In France, Jimmy Ford adopts an orphan police puppy, names it Rin-Tin-Tin, and smuggles it home after the war. Murtagh, a crooked politician, covets Jimmy's sweet heart, Ruth Allen. Jimmy's father, a police lieutenant, is mysteriously murdered. Jimmy joins the force to avenge him. Jimmy has an ability in Rin-Tin-Tin, now full grown. Murtagh, hating and fearing Jimmy, has him assigned to the dead-end neighborhood of the Hudson Busters, a gang Murtagh secretly leads. Jimmy and Rinty are ambushed, and fight a terrible battle with the Busters. When Jimmy is shot down, Rinty runs to a signal box—

CHAPTER 7—Continued

Raising himself upon his hind legs, Rinty rested one forepaw on top of the police box, then with the other paw carefully pressed down the lever that unlatched the iron door. To pry the thus unlatched cover wide open was a small task. Many's the time Rinty had been schooled in this whole stunt by Jimmy, though not with the thought that the smart trick would ever be called into play so knowingly, so wisely as this by Rinty, left alone in a fatal emergency.

Once the box was open Rinty next unhooked the receiver of the report telephone and burst—barked in curt, eloquent little warning tones.

At the signal board in the precinct station house the police telephone operator on duty was listening to the strangest warning that had ever come over any such line—short barks, succeeded at length by the impenetrable, eerie night cry of the wolf. The officer, after trying in vain to get a response in human tones, had let out a yell that brought the desk attendant from scope to his heart. Suspense, dire, harrowing suspense, then: "He's still breathing—thank God!"

The glint of hope in this communicated itself to Rinty, who crowded close. When the surgeon turned away to take restoratives out of his case Rinty suddenly thrust his eager face forward and tenderly licked Jimmy's cheeks. The surgeon, observing this, gestured as though to impatiently push the big dog aside, but Captain O'Brien caught his arm and whispered:

"Wait, man. There's some things in this world, you know, that have more power in them than your medicine."

A moment later when Jimmy's eyes flickered open and looked up into Rinty's face, bewildered, but content, the Captain nudged Flaherty and the surgeon with such delight and vigor that he came near to upsetting the both of them. "You see," he said, "there's something in the love of this fine dog that you can't carry around in bottles!"

All bent close to Jimmy then—Rinty, the surgeon, O'Brien and Flaherty—and above them an over-hanging circle of concerned faces, concern in which mingled the resolve to exact vengeance for this shooting down of a comrade.

Jimmy's first weak word and first faded smile were for Rinty, his next for Captain O'Brien:

"I told you Rinty and I would do our best, sir—and we did till they got me!"

Then he Flaherty; love after duty: "Break it easy to mother and Ruth. Tell them not to worry. I'll be O. K. I'm not hurt much." An exclamation of pain cut short his words and belied them. The surgeon hastily took charge and warned Jimmy to say no more. Instead, the had could not. The captain grasped Jimmy's hands encouragingly and whispered enthusiastic praise, while the surgeon got his preliminary gush there on the back of his hand.

"It just brings father's looking down on you this day his proud he must be, Jimmy. Your best was—damn good! Two of the rascals are dead—and by the Lord Hannab I'm going to personally direct the scouring out of this neighborhood, and every suspicious character we can lay our hands on will go into the big mill we got at the bottom of this assault on you, boy!"

With that the Captain left Jimmy to the professional meron of the precinct surgeon and the personal one of Flaherty and Rinty, while he arose with a fierce light in his eyes and in a few crisp instructions formed his reserves into the police "drug net" on hand and feared by New York's underworld. Research and pry and ferret through every available cop in the precinct force did, they were unable to find any person of thing of importance. The Hudson Busters had disappeared into their unknown holes, and Dan the Duke Murrigh, suave and feigning to be greatly concerned, was one of the most callous victors at the station house to learn the details of the shooting of Copper Ford—and later at the stricken boy's hospital bedside.

Meantime the surgeon and his stretcher bearers made Jimmy ready and as comfortable as humanly possible for the trip in the department ambulance to Bellevue Hospital. Flaherty was to go along and stay with him. Jimmy hailed the preparations with a feeble gesture, while he asked:

"Who is going to tell mother about this?"

Flaherty knuckled a tear out of the eyes between his sorrow creased forehead. "Sure, it ain't but a bone ago I was sayin' I didn't want to be the bearer of bad news to the widow!"

Jimmy, with a courageous show of strength and determination, gritted:

"It ain't half as bad as that old phiz or yours looks! But you'd scare anybody to death with that mug, Flaherty, so please get out a bit of paper and write as I tell you to—"

The surgeon attempted to remonstrate and urge the need to hurry, but Jimmy stopped him with a firm gesture. Flaherty extracted his memo book and wrote as Jimmy dictated:

"MOTHER DEAR—HAD A LITTLE ACCIDENT. WILL BE O. K. TELL RUTH AND PLEASE, NEITHER OF YOU MUST WORRY. COME TO BELLEVUE LOVE."

"Hold me up now," said Jimmy. Grasping the pencil grimly, he affixed his signature to the note.

"JIMMY."

One thing more, after which he would be content to lay back and resign himself to the medical men. "Put that message in Rinty's collar and send him home. He's got more sense than any other cop in New York. He won't frighten mother to death!" Jimmy looked wily at the faithful dog: "If I check out you'll be all that mother and Ruth will have left to protect them, to love them. Rinty! It always seems to be up to you!"

Rinty barked in curt, warning tones.

His oaken throne and the captain from his private office.

They recognized Rinty's "voice."

When the mournful night cry died away Captain O'Brien said:

"There isn't a doubt but that Rinty's alone and something terrible has happened. Quick, sergeant, the reserves—armed for riot duty!"

The smooth, faultless, almost inhumanly perfect machinery of a police precinct headquarters was flowing in swift motion the next moment, and before a dozen or more seconds had elapsed two patrol wagons and several scout roadsters, an ambulance and the captain in his own high powered car were rushing and rumbling through the streets toward the midway phone box of Post 12.

Meantime Officer Flaherty had reached the battleground shambles. And simultaneously with him a few lay citizens who had chanced upon the scene. It was a gruesome spectacle that presented itself to them. Two men stone dead in the dark ebb tide of their lives' blood. Black Mike, horribly torn by Rinty, but really killed by the bullets of his own comrades, and the Squeeze Kid—these two would haunt the underworld labyrinth of law-breaking no more.

But the sight that almost caused Flaherty's good old heart to stop its beating was the motionless, blood covered body of young Jimmy, and the wan, white face and closed eyes.

"Jimmy, Jimmy lad! Did they get you, boy? Speak to me, Jimmy!"

A swirl of shaggy shoulders, a sorrowful whimpering, an anxious concentration of great eyes—that was Rinty, back beside his stricken master now with a bound. A furious rush and clanging down the street, and a leaping, alert blue and a heartbroken, outraged medley of right good oaths when they saw Jimmy—that was the arrival of the reserves.

Captain O'Brien shared with Flaherty the loving task of pillow Jimmy's hot, tumbled head in their strong arms while the precinct surgeon applied the metho-

CORN BORER NOW SERIOUS THREAT TO ILLINOIS CORN

Committee Meets to Con- sider Ways to Fight Destructive Worm

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A little worm about an inch long with a double row of brown dots down its jointed back is spreading alarm in the middle west and threatening one of its chief products—corn.

The international corn borer committee met here Friday to devise means of heading off the pest, known as the European corn borer. Members said the ravages of the worm, which having entered the country from Europe and Canada, is travelling westward at a speed of 25 miles a year, have brought about as serious a condition as ever threatened agriculture. The depredations of the boll weevil in the cotton field have not been worse than will be the corn borer damage unless the little spotted worm is checked, they say.

The borer is so called because he eats a tunnel right through the heart of the corn stalk. He also attacks the ear and blades of corn and is not averse to other vegetation.

Threat to Illinois
"The problem is greater in states such as Illinois, Iowa, and Kansas, where the insect has not gained a foothold, than in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania, already overrun," said W. P. Hartman of Grand Rapids, Michigan. "They should organize and appropriate money to prevent the advance into their territory."

Inspection trips were made in Kent and Essex counties, Ontario, Canada, where every stalk of corn had one or more borers in it. The pest had been there for three years. It was found, members of the committee said that where the borer had been for three years, there was a 90 percent reduction in the corn area, one predicted that next year might see a 99 per cent reduction. Although the borer, which entered this country about 1907 from Europe, confines its activities principally to corn, it has been found in 253 different kinds of vegetables.

"The borers if left unmolested," said Mr. Hartman, "will practically destroy a field of corn. The attack on the leaves, the tassels, the stalk, the ear, and all parts of the plant, even the roots, tunneling their way through whatever particular portion of the plant they attack."

GIMME

Baby waddles up to dad, an' climbs upon his knee. Bein' held makes baby glad; she's happy as kin be. Finds that father's feelin' fine, so then the child will shout, "Gimme penny, will ya dad?" And father shells right out. Son, who's sixteen years or so, pays dad a call, downtown. Father always seems to know just why he's called around. Chat about a thing or two, and then relies on luck, Springs the same ol' "gimme" gag—and father's out a buck.

Grown-up sister flatters dad when he comes home at night. She knows how to handle him, and get him feelin' right. Then, when father spreads a smile, she begs a brand new hat. "Gimme just ten dollars, pop." And father pays for that. All the kids have had their turn. The old man rests at ease. Gosh, he'd rather give to them, than listen to them tease. "Gimme Gimme!" all day long, but what kin father say? He knows that what the kids don't get his wife will, anyway.
